

ABSTRACT

A display apparatus which enables the display screen to be increased in size. The display apparatus includes a panel substrate operating as a display screen, plural display devices arranged in a matrix on the panel substrate, and a drive circuit substrate having a drive circuit for driving each display device. The panel substrate is subdivided into plural areas by driving wiring adapted for driving the display devices, and a plurality of the drive circuit substrates are provided in association with the respective areas.

09927516-081301